Touring English Debating Team of Ivor Jones and Hector McNeil Brought on City Tour — See Court House, Harbour Bridge and Law Office — Visit Moyse Hall And Redpath Library — Admire Stadium And Field House — Prepare For Wednesday Night's Debate Against McGill Team.

IVOR JONES and Hector McNeil the English debaters who will uphold the affirmative of "Resolved that man only exists in prosperity and lives in adversity" this coming Wednesday night in the Royal Victoria College at 8.15 against a McGill team composed of Edmund Collard, president of the debating Union and Arthur Marshall, former winner of the Talbot-Papineau cup for public speaking, toured this metropolis yesterday afternoon under the guidance of Wilson Beckett and Max Ford. When interviewed by the Daily, they spoke highly of Montreal, its building and its people.

Tour Business District
Once underway the two debaters, accompanied by Wilson Beckett and Max Ford, wended their way through Montreal's shopping and business district and made their first stop at the Harbor. There a pause was made to enable the visitors to see how Canada's greatest port carried on its shipping trade. Then they continued along the river front to the Harbor Bridge. The height and structure of Montreal's latest Engineering feat impressed them and after a reasonable pause, continued through downtown Montreal till they arrived at the Court-House. The atmosphere within it seemed to them to be pervaded with informality and they wondered how court cases could be carried on in a place where the public entered at leisure, their desire to see it could not be fulfilled, however, as it was too late to witness any trials.

Arthur Marshall

From the Court House they proceeded to the law offices of Brown and Montgomery. After an interview with Mr. Brown, they availed themselves of the opportunity of viewing Montreal from such a vantage point as Mr. Brown's office-window provided. Having thus seen the industrial and commercial background of Montreal, they were escorted to the McGill Stadium. There both were satisfied by the brand of soccer McGill played and rated McGill's team as the best they

Freshmen Compete For Bovey Shield

Trophy Offered For First Year Debating

Prof. Paul McCullagh of the Department of Classics has consented to act as a judge in Friday's Bovey Shield Contest. Edmund Collard is to be the second judge while the third has yet to be chosen.

The Bovey Shield, donated by Col. Bovey, is a trophy for public speaking competition, being open only to Freshmen. The value of this public speaking contest is shown by the fact that many of the winners have gone far in McGill debates. Marshall, the winner three years ago, is debating for McGill against the visiting English team, Ivor Jones and Hector McNeil, tonight. The winners in 1930 and 1931 were Anderson and Hasler.

The committee in charge hope that the first year men will show their interest in public speaking by taking part in Friday's contest.

Orchestra Prepares For Coming Concert

The McGill Concert Orchestra holds its second meeting of the year this evening in the Ball Room of the Union at eight o'clock, in order to practice for the concert which is to be given under the auspices of the Musical Association on December 7.

One feature of this will be a flute solo by Frank Prand, accompanied by the Orchestra. Composing the string quartet for the occasion are Louis Gaudriol, Stanley Widman, Jules Lepointe and Foster McNamee. Practices will be held often in the future as new music has been received and preparations for the forthcoming concert demand more rehearsals.

In this latter regard the executive issues a cordial invitation to members of the Choral and Operatic Society to rehearse with the orchestra.

Casting Continues In First Children's Play

Call Issued For Actors in Treasure Island

This afternoon will witness the continuance of the casting for the first children's play of the season—"Treasure Island." These plays are made possible through the co-operation of the Department of English and the Department of Extra-Mural relations, and an invitation is tendered all students with any acting ability to turn out.

As the cast of Treasure Island largely comprises men, a large turnout of men is required. As none of the parts require a great deal of previous experience, everyone is requested to attend these practices. The casting will take place between 2:30 and 5:30 this afternoon. If there are any students interested in this play but who cannot appear for trial at the designated hours, they may leave their names backstage with Miss Gray.

The following students are particularly requested to turn out: Erson, Leatham, Rubin, Ransom, Vernon, Bloomfield, Hawes, Goldstein, Stewart and Grimes-Graeme.

Class Spirit Subject At Arts '34 Meeting

Program of Activities For Year Outlined To Sophomores

Ways and means of fostering class spirit were discussed at length, at a meeting of the Arts '35 Executive held last Saturday. In the first place it was pointed out that all members of the class will have an opportunity of meeting their fellow students in a social way at the Arts Undergraduate Smoker on Thursday night, at which it is hoped there will be a large turnout. Secondly, it was decided that instead of a formal meeting, Arts '35 will this year hold a Class Luncheon, which will take place some time in December.

Tentative plans for reviving the now inactive Inter-Class Debating League were also drawn up. It was felt by the Executive that there are a great number of prospective debaters in the class, who do not take part in the Junior Debating League, but who would, nevertheless, like to debate. It was therefore decided to arrange a number of elimination debates between members of the class, with the winners to compete in the Inter-Class League.

Charities Campaign Will Be Organized At Luncheon Today

All Class Presidents And Undergrad. Society Officers to be Present

OBJECTIVE LARGE

Prof. Simpson And John Hutchins in Charge of Canvassers

A luncheon meeting in connection with the Federated Charities Drive at McGill will be held at one o'clock in the Union. Those expected to present are the executive officers of all Undergraduate Societies including M.S.P.E., Theology, R.V.C., Graduate Nurses, and Graduate School, also all Class presidents and the officers of the Library School. The luncheon is sponsored by the Students' Executive Council, and it is hoped that all of the above-mentioned officers will be in attendance for this worthy cause. John A. Hutchins of Law 35 is Chairman of the Student Committee and is organizing groups of canvassers in various faculties and years so that every student in the University will be interviewed and given a chance to contribute. The Staff teams will be headed by Professor J. C. Simpson of the Faculty of Medicine.

Objective Large

McGill's share in the annual campaign which opens on Monday, October 31st, is to subscribe $19,500. Of this the student body is asked to contribute $2,000, leaving $17,500 to be collected from the Staff of the University. Last year McGill contributed in all $17,478, of which $1350 was from the students. The committee realizes that it is going to be an extremely difficult task to raise even more than previously in this year of strained financial circumstances. It hopes, however, that all appreciate the necessity of this kind of work which is increased immensely under such conditions.

The committee, in view of these facts, looks for the whole-hearted support of all those who are asked to assist, if not by money then by work. Unless the student body responds to the appeal to the fullest extent, suffering and want will be the lot of those who are depending on our generosity.

The additional $2,000 which McGill is asked to contribute may seem a large amount to collect in this year the executive admits, but the only way to reach the objective without strain is for every student to give to the limit of his ability. It was announced that all contributions, no matter how small, will be gratefully accepted.

This year an increase of $25,000 is needed in the total canvass of the Federated Charities throughout the city. The increase is to enable the 32 agencies in the Federation to continue their work, although in every case this work has been reduced to a basis of essential service. It has been announced that never before has there been such heavy demands on the resources of the agencies.

Dr. Douglas, who is minister of St. James United Church, has won great reputation as an essayist, his "Magnificent Obsession" having been revised several times in Canada, United States and England. His latest, "Forgive Us Our Trespasses" will appear shortly in Canada and the U. S. A. The author is not a native of Canada, having come from the Mid-western states.

R.V.C. Historical Club To Gather in Common Room

Union Informal To Be Prom's Sequel

$1.00 a Couple — Numbers To be Admitted Limited

The Union will put on its first Informal of the year this Friday night as a sequel to the Freshie Prom, held last night. The price will be a dollar a couple, or the same price for a stag. The Executive feel that this is a reasonable amount and that a large number will be attracted.

The affair will be held as usual in the Union Ballroom at 9.30. The name of the orchestra has not been yet divulged. By tomorrow, full particulars will be available. A limited number only will be allowed to be present.

Last year, the Union held several of these affairs, and they have been always very well attended. This dance really starts the College social season. The same procedure will be followed this year.

Program Of Varied Nature Planned For Undergrad Smoker

Distinguished Staff Members To Address Gathering in Union Ballroom

REFRESHMENTS FREE

Sweaters, Not Necessarily McGill Ones Must Be Worn

Among the list of distinguished guests who have signified their intention to be present at the Arts Undergraduate Smoker to be held tomorrow evening in the Union Ballroom are Sir Arthur Currie and Dean Ira MacKay. It is expected that during the course of the program they will add to the general spirit of good fellowship by saying a few remarks to the Undergrads. Students are to be assured, however, that this will by no means detract from the informality of the occasion.

The program, which will commence at eight o'clock immediately after a prelude of music rendered by the McGill Band, will be kept lively throughout, the executive announced. The main part of it will be in the form of skits by the Arts '33 class and a few veteran McGill entertainers including Max Ford and Jim Harvey while it is promised that some sort of professional entertainment will add to the lustre of the meeting. Wally Erskine will be Master of Ceremonies.

The executive urge all those who will be present not to forget their sweaters, as this is expected to add to the spirit of informality of the meeting. Any sweaters at all will be in vogue, and not necessarily McGill ones. Added attractions to the gathering will be the fact that there will be free smokes, and free refreshments which will include hot dogs, coffee and coca cola on ice. It is also expected that the cheer leaders will be on hand to assist in the program by rehearsing a few of the old McGill yells which ought to provide the necessary college atmosphere. Speeches will be made by several athletic coaches as well as many prominent staff officials in order that a closer relationship be formed between the staff as a whole and the student body.

The meeting is to be a business one as well as one of entertainment, and it is expected that a discussion on a proposed banquet to be held in the near future will also take place. The evening is to be in the form of a Pep Rally to arouse enthusiasm for more Faculty functions of a formal type if the Undergraduate body signifies its approval in the form of a whole-hearted attendance at this the first gathering.

Chemical Society To Hold Initial Meeting

Arts and Engineering Students Invited to Attend This Friday

An opportunity for those students interested in Chemistry will be presented when the Chemical Industry Club holds its initial meeting of the year, this Friday afternoon at five o'clock in Room 2 of the Chemistry Building. Both Arts and Engineering students are welcome, the Executive state, the only requirement being an interest in Chemistry.

The business of the meeting will be the election of officers, all of which are to be chosen with the exception of the president, who was elected last year, and the discussion of plans and trips for the coming year.

The president for this year is D. W. Young. Last year, several excursions were made, among which were the trip to Dawes' Brewery, the Robert Mitchell Co., and the C. I. L. plant at Beloeil. Some of the papers presented on pertinent chemical questions are as follows: the Manufacture of Soda Pulp, the Chemistry of Photography and the Absorption Indices.

Delta Sigma Society Publishes Periodical

The Delta Sigma Society, which embraces in its membership all the women undergraduates of the University who have paid the universal fee, will hold its first meeting of the session tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock in the Common Room of the R.V.C. Freshettes, especially, will be welcomed. Though the Executive has refused to give any definite information on the subject it is understood that the Society will resume the publishing of the McGilliad in some form or another.

Principal Characters In Operetta Chosen

Production Has Large Cast of Over One Hundred People

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Strict Measures Have Been Taken Against All Late-Comers to Rehearsals

Stage work under Mrs. Norris has already started for the principals of the production "Yeomen of the Guard" to be staged by the McGill Choral and Operatic Society on Dec. 13-14th inclusive. The characters that have been chosen to act as the eight yeomen of the operetta are A. H. Willard, Rudkin, Bert Cockerton, R. Carmichael, F. Knowles, J. Bernard, Art Marshall and G. Mitchell.

The cast of the operetta will include about one hundred people and will feature the largest male chorus ever known to McGill productions. Work is progressing and the chorus are now singing their parts without the aid of their musical score. Although stage work has already been started by the principal characters of the cast, the chorus will not start their work for the stage until next week.

Strict Measures Adopted
In view of the fact that much progress in the practices has been retarded due to late-comers, stricter measures have been taken to amend this situation. It has been announced that attendance will be taken at 8 o'clock, and all latecomers are to report to the men's or women's representative.

Newman Club Holds First Informal Soon

Congress Hall Scene of Depression Dance Thursday Night

Congress Hall, situated at the corner of Dorchester and Alexander Streets, will hold an informal dance for the members and friends of the Newman Club of McGill Thursday evening, October 27th, commencing at 8.45.

A special depression rate of 75 cents for an unaccompanied male and 25 cents for ladies will inaugurate the first of a series of popular soirees to be held by the Newman Club. Symphonic rhythm will be distilled by the Angus Smythe's Musical Troubadours, a seven piece dance orchestra.

Ample refreshments to satisfy the most fastidious taste and the most rabid appetite will be supplied the dancers at no extra charge. Tickets will be on sale at Congress Hall and those interested in an inexpensive evening of undoubted enjoyment are well advised to join the numerous students who have already signified their intention of being present.

Glee Club Meets

Number of Ballads Rehearsed in Union

The Glee Club held another rehearsal last evening in the Grill room of the Union and concentrated on the two ballads "To all you ladies now on land" and "Keep on the middle of the road." These two numbers are well enough in hand, the executive deem, to allow a start to be made on another number. As there is a concert in December, it is necessary for continued good attendance at all rehearsals. These are held every Tuesday at 7.30 p.m. in the Grill room of the Union. There is still a big need of Tenors and the advent of anyone whose genius lies in this direction will be heartily welcomed.

Sound Of Revelry Fills Ballroom As Freshmen Disport

Crowd Throngs Union Midst Tunes of H. Simpson's Privateers

ENDS AT MIDNIGHT

Many Unupperclassmen Present at Freshie Prom Last Night

Conviviality, happiness and "joie de vivre" shone on the faces of the freshmen and freshettes, who deserting their books for an evening, disported themselves at the "Prom" given in their honor last night in the Ballroom of the Union. However, not only did the newcomers make merry at the dance which displaced the annual Conversat, given by the S.C.A., but many upper classmen took advantage of this occasion to meet the new crop of feminine pulchritude which the various high schools throughout the country produce each year to swell the number of McGill students, and to replace the graduates.

Before the first dance was played, dancers met informally and filled out their dance cards. The numbers of participants exceeded the expectations of the Union House Committee. In spite of the milling crowd, the arrangements went off without a hitch, although the projected "Paul Jones" failed to come off.

Broke Up At Midnight

Howard Simpson's Privateers supplied the music for the dancers and fox-trots and waltzes alternated throughout the evening. Supper was served in the Cafeteria about 11 o'clock to the large crowd. The Dance came to a close at midnight. According to the Committee, the affair was a huge success, and should be a precedent for future years.

Among those present were: Gertrude Cooper, C. Griffin, Ben. Thornton, R. R. Hogg, Janet Stevenson, Albert Lee, Vivian Stewart, K. Place, D. D. Thomson, Joe Gould, S. Fels, M. Layton, K. MacMillan, J. ## Explains Divergent Opinions Of Russia

Professor Forsey Tells Newfoundland Club Aspects of Country

One hears so many divergent opinions concerning conditions in Russia, but this can be explained, as Professor Forsey pointed out to the Newfoundland Club in their first meeting of the season in Strathcona Hall last night, by the fact that there are so many bad observers, "that things in Russia change with startling rapidity," and that many so-called experts quote illustrations out of their context.

In dealing with his impressions of Russia during his recent tour of the country the speaker showed the keen interest in Russia as evidenced by the many tourists, the presence of employment and security for all despite the low standard of living, the absolute confidence of the people and the enormous enthusiasm of the young for the new order of things. "Providing a path to life, Russia is now witnessing the greatest social enterprise that the world has ever seen."

The President of the club, O. T. Howell, pointed out the advantages of a sectional club at McGill. In a humorous speech Professor Hatcher outlined some of the features of a Newfoundland, illustrating his views by several anecdotes.

Active work has commenced on the program of unemployment research, ten new projects having been added to the work done last year by the Social Research Council of the University. The departments of Economics, Sociology, Law, Industrial Engineering and Public Health co-ordinated through the department of Social Research will contribute to the general program. The University is concerned with the economic and social conditions which attend and determine unemployment, and the problems of dealing with it in all its various spheres. The program is undertaken with the object of securing systematic knowledge of unemployment problems and the best methods of dealing with them.

New Projects

The new projects, the departments from which the work is proceeding and the name of the new graduate assistant in charge is as follows:

- (1) Employment and unemployment problems of the food and drink trades in Montreal. (Economics), Arthur Sheeler, B.A. McGill, first-class honours in economics and political science.
- (2) The Montreal labour market and the problems of employment, readjustment; a study of the employment history of discharged workers in Montreal. (Economics), P. S. Helber, B. Com. Toronto, first-class honours economics.

Union Informal To Be Prom's Sequel

$1.00 a Couple — Numbers To be Admitted Limited

The Union will put on its first informal of the year this Friday night as a sequel to the Freshie Prom, held last night. The price will be a dollar a couple, or the same price for a stag. The Executive feel that this is a reasonable amount and that a large number will be attracted.

The affair will be held as usual in the Union Ballroom at 9.30. The name of the orchestra has not been yet divulged. By tomorrow, full particulars will be available. A limited number only will be allowed to be present.

Last year, the Union held several of these affairs, and they have been always very well attended. This dance really starts the College social season. The same procedure will be followed this year.

Program Of Varied Nature Planned For Undergrad Smoker

Distinguished Staff Members To Address Gathering in Union Ballroom

Sweaters, Not Necessarily McGill Ones Must Be Worn

Among the list of distinguished guests who have signified their intention to be present at the Arts Undergraduate Smoker to be held tomorrow evening in the Union Ballroom are Sir Arthur Currie and Dean Ira MacKay. It is expected that during the course of the program they will add to the general spirit of good fellowship by saying a few remarks to the Undergrads. Students are to be assured, however, that this will by no means detract from the informality of the occasion.

The program, which will commence at eight o'clock immediately after a prelude of music rendered by the McGill Band, will be kept lively throughout, the executive announced. The main part of it will be in the form of skits by the Arts '33 class and a few veteran McGill entertainers including Max Ford and Jim Harvey while it is promised that some sort of professional entertainment will add to the lustre of the meeting. Wally Erskine will be Master of Ceremonies.

The executive urge all those who will be present not to forget their sweaters, as this is expected to add to the spirit of informality of the meeting. Any sweaters at all will be in vogue, and not necessarily McGill ones. Added attractions to the gathering will be the fact that there will be free smokes, and free refreshments which will include hot dogs, coffee and coca cola on ice. It is also expected that the cheer leaders will be on hand to assist in the program by rehearsing a few of the old McGill yells which ought to provide the necessary college atmosphere. Speeches will be made by several athletic coaches as well as many prominent staff officials in order that a closer relationship be formed between the staff as a whole and the student body.

The meeting is to be a business one as well as one of entertainment, and it is expected that a discussion on a proposed banquet to be held in the near future will also take place. The evening is to be in the form of a Pep Rally to arouse enthusiasm for more Faculty functions of a formal type if the Undergraduate body signifies its approval in the form of a whole-hearted attendance at this the first gathering.

Chemical Society To Hold Initial Meeting

Arts and Engineering Students Invited to Attend This Friday

An opportunity for those students interested in Chemistry will be presented when the Chemical Industry Club holds its initial meeting of the year, this Friday afternoon at five o'clock in Room 2 of the Chemistry Building. Both Arts and Engineering students are welcome, the Executive state, the only requirement being an interest in Chemistry.

The business of the meeting will be the election of officers, all of which are to be chosen with the exception of the president, who was elected last year, and the discussion of plans and trips for the coming year.

The president for this year is D. W. Young. Last year, several excursions were made, among which were the trip to "Dawes" Brewery, the Robert Mitchell Co., and the C. I. L. plant at Beloit. Some of the papers presented on pertinent chemical questions are as follows: The Manufacture of Soda Pulp, the Chemistry of Photography and the Absorption Indicators.

Delta Sigma Society Publishes Periodical

The Delta Sigma Society, which embraces in its membership all the women undergraduates of the University who have paid the universal fee, will hold its first meeting of the session tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock in the Common Room of the R.V.C. Freshettes, especially, will be welcomed. Though the Executive has refused to give any definite information on the subject, it is understood that the Society will resume the publishing of the McGillian in some form or another.

Principal Characters In Operetta Chosen

Production Has Large Cast of Over One Hundred People

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Strict Measures Have Been Taken Against All Late-Comers to Rehearsals

Stage work under Mrs. Norris has already started for the principals of the production "Yeomen of the Guard" to be staged by the McGill Choral and Operatic Society on Dec. 13-17th inclusive. The characters that have been chosen to act as the eight yeomen of the operetta are A. H. Willard, Rudkin, Bert Cockerton, R. Carmichael, F. Knowles, J. Bernard, Art Marshall and G. Mitchell.

The cast of the operetta will include about one hundred people and will feature the largest male chorus ever known to McGill productions. Work is progressing and the chorus are now singing their parts without the aid of their musical score. Although stage work has already been started by the principal characters of the cast, the chorus will not start their work for the stage until next week.

Strict Measures Adopted

In view of the fact that much progress in the practices has been retarded due to late-comers, stricter measures have been taken to amend this situation. It has been announced that attendance will be taken at 8 o'clock, and all latecomers are to report to the men's or women's representative.

Congress Hall Scene of Depression Dance Thursday Night

Congress Hall, situated at the corner of Dorchester and Alexander Streets, will hold an informal dance for the members and friends of the Newman Club of McGill Thursday evening, October 27th, commencing at 8.45.

A special depression rate of 75 cents for an unaccompanied male and 25 cents for ladies will inaugurate the first of a series of popular soirees to be held by the Newman Club. Symphonic rhythm will be distilled by the Angus Smythe's Musical Troubadours, a seven piece dance orchestra.

Ample refreshments to satisfy the most fastidious taste and the most rabid appetite will be supplied the dancers at no extra charge. Tickets will be on sale at Congress Hall and those interested in an inexpensive evening of undoubted enjoyment are well advised to join the numerous students who have already signified their intention of being present.

Glee Club Meets

Number of Ballads Rehearsed in Union

The Glee Club held another rehearsal last evening in the Grill room of the Union and concentrated on the two Ballads "To all you ladies now on land" and "Keep on the middle of the road." These two numbers are well enough in hand, the executive deem, to allow a start to be made on another number. As there is a concert in December, it is necessary for continued good attendance at all rehearsals. These are held every Tuesday at 7.30 p.m. in the Grill room of the Union. There is still a big need of Tenors and the advent of anyone whose genius lies in this direction will be heartily welcomed.

Crowd Throngs Union Midst Tunes of H. Simpson's Privateers

ENDS AT MIDNIGHT

Many Unupperclassmen Present at Freshie Prom Last Night

Conviviality, happiness and "Jole do vivre" shone on the faces of the freshmen and freshettes, who despoiled their books for an evening, disported themselves at the "Prom" given in their honor last night in the Ballroom of the Union. However, not only did the newcomers make merry at the dance which displaced the annual Convivial, given by the S.C.A., but many upper classmen took advantage of this occasion to meet the new crop of feminine pulchritude which the various high schools throughout the country produce each year to swell the number of McGill students, and to replace the graduates.

Before the first dance was played, dancers met informally and filled out their dance cards. The numbers of participants exceeded the expectations of the Union House Committee. In spite of the milling crowd, the arrangements went off without a hitch, although the projected "Paul Jones" failed to come off.

Broke Up At Midnight

Howard Simpson's Privateers supplied the music for the dancers and fox-trots and waltzes alternated throughout the evening. Supper was served in the Cafeteria about 11 o'clock to the large crowd. The Dance came to a close at midnight. According to the Committee, the affair was a huge success, and should be a precedent for future years.

Among those present were: Gertrude Cooper, C. Griffin, Ben. Thornton, R. Hogg, Janet Stevenson, Albert Lee, Vivian Stewart, K. Place, D. D. Thomson, Joe Gould, S. Fels, M. Layton, K. MacMillan, J. K. ## Explains Divergent Opinions Of Russia

One hears so many divergent opinions concerning conditions in Russia, but this can be explained, as Professor Forsey pointed out to the Newfoundland Club in their first meeting of the season in Strathcona Hall last night, by the fact that there are so many bad observers, "that things in Russia change with startling rapidity," and that many so-called experts quote illustrations out of their context.

In dealing with his impressions of Russia during his recent tour of the country the speaker showed the keen interest in Russia as evidenced by the many tourists, the presence of employment and security for all despite the low standard of living, the absolute confidence of the people and the enormous enthusiasm of the young for the new order of things. "Providing a path to life, Russia is now witnessing the greatest social enterprise that the world has ever seen."

The President of the club, C. J. Howell, pointed out the advantages of a sectional club at McGill. In a humorous speech Professor Hatcher outlined some of the features of a Newfoundland Club, illustrating his views by several anecdotes.

Tolerance

TRUE to the world-wide principle of regarding selfishness a worthwhile national trait, the United States are now enforcing a regulation that most unfairly discriminates against foreign students. Aliens in attendance at college can no longer earn their fees and other expenses by working. Positions that pay money, however small the amount may be, are denied them.

When hearing of intolerance of this sort, the first reaction is usually to reflect upon its injustice. But to one who is not an idealist, and who thus does not expect any government, here or elsewhere, to display fairness in its outside relations, comes the thought that such discrimination is narrow-sighted, injurious to the U.S.A. itself.

A university with a cosmopolitan attendance has an immeasurable advantage from the educational point of view. The extra-national contacts, the social intercourse with foreign students, — these in themselves have a broadening influence upon the maturing mind. To deny the means of livelihood to outsiders is to deny considerable opportunity for mental expansion.

This move seems peculiarly out of place at the present time when a world-wide effort is being made—however much in vain—to develop better understanding between nations. Probably the best way to secure this understanding is to encourage the intermingling of diverse nationalities in intellectual and social life. The loss of cosmopolitan influence through this edict will not be compensated by the slightly better chance an American student will have of obtaining employment.

But not only is this action doing away with a positive influence; it tends also to diminish foreign goodwill towards the U.S.A. The gesture is distinctly unfriendly at a time when friendliness is urgently needed. To turn away intelligent immigrants for the sake of a paltry and doubtful economic advantage cannot be regarded as a wise national move.

The Oxford Movement

MONTREAL is this week playing host to that amazing body of religious crusaders, the Oxford Group, and judging by the crowd at their meeting Monday evening they have captured the imagination of Montrealers, usually blasé and uninterested in affairs of this type.

There is a reason for this unusual interest and it is to be found in the fact that these people are no ordinary religious reformers. They have a certain sincerity and friendliness which compels attention. They are not composed of Theologs, but are in the main ordinary students like ourselves, who led a gay life in many cases until they saw the light and became imbued with the spirit of the movement.

Twenty-five years ago Dr. Frank N. D. Buchman saw that the only answer to the problems which confronted the world was a return to religion. This still holds true. Through a Scottish soldier the idea was spread at Oxford, whence it was taken to South Africa by Rhodes scholars. The word has been carried throughout the world and disciples of the movement are to be found in Holland, South Africa, Germany, Australia, and many other countries.

The spiritual awakening which has come upon the members of this movement is little short of miraculous. According to their own testimony many of them led a life which was decidedly wild. Once they had come in contact with the group, however, they were impressed by the sincerity of its members, and before long were completely changed. With one accord they claim that they have never been far happier since they started to live a religious life. Their former life of gaiety supplied only a restless sort of pleasure; they felt all the time that they were searching for something, something to give a meaning to life. In the Oxford Group they found it. Since then life has been totally changed, and has really meant something to them.

This crusade is a real frontier movement of Christendom. Their object is to convince as many people as possible that devoting oneself to Christ and leading a true Christian life is the real way to contentment. With this object in view they attempt to get in contact with all sorts of people. They take no one for granted and some of their conversions have been amazing. Their greatest weapon is good-fellowship and example.

They claim that a spiritual awakening is the way out of the present depression—that a Christian attitude will solve the economic evils of the world. There is a lot to this idea. Certainly it seems that our troubles cannot be solved by the economists. Whether the Oxford Group is right or wrong, their missionaries compel our attention, and all those who attend their meetings this week are bound to be impressed and interested in their obvious simplicity and sincerity.

Notes and Notes

The Montreal Orchestra

THE MONTREAL ORCHESTRA will start its third season on Sunday afternoon, a season which, should it show the progress of its two predecessors, will add materially in raising this group to the eminence of consummate artistry that is known only to the few of real worth. The Orchestra has the material, the best in Montreal. Certain of its offerings in the past have shown, by their high quality, what will be possible when it will be keyed up in its entirety to this pitch.

As soon as one speaks of the Montreal Orchestra, one is immediately reminded of its conductor, Mr. Douglas Clarke. Notwithstanding his pre-occupations as Dean of the Faculty of Music, he has so managed as to be able to devote practically all of his mornings to the rehearsals. He has trained the orchestra to its present abilities, handicapped as he is on the one side by the financial difficulties of such organization, and on the other by the comparative lack of sufficient music in the city to fill the programs without overfrequent repetitions.

The Orchestral programs of the past have shown a very wide taste, ranging from Scarlatti, and Bach to such moderns as Walton, Bax, and even Gershwin. They have enabled us to hear concerto arrangements as originally intended, not merely with a supplement of the orchestral score by the piano. Famous artists have been introduced amidst the only musical background that can properly set off their capabilities. In short we have been able to both hear and see.

This matter of seeing the orchestra is an important one, particularly if the listener is not accustomed to the type of music peculiar to it. The complexity of the sounds coming from one point, as it would do in the radio or gramophone, would confuse the listener hopelessly, and much of the color of the tones would be lost. Watching the players, however, one follows the actual progress of the theme as it is taken up by the various parts, and eventually learns to point out the general location of all the instruments. Furthermore, one is introduced to some of the technique of the instruments, by perceiving the effect of the pizzicato—plucking the strings—or the mute. Eventually the tone of the instrument is sufficient in itself to name it, at which point, orchestral music becomes more important than the orchestra which produces it.

A few innovations are being made in the arrangements for this year, the most outstanding one being the introduction of program notes to explain the several numbers. A very new instrument will also be among the novelties. This is known as a contrabass Clarinet in B flat, claimed to have a more powerful tone and lower register than other instrument, and intended to replace the contrabassoon. This the first of its kind to be used in an orchestra, the second being in the same process of construction for the Philadelphia Orchestra.

The program for the coming Sunday concert at His Majesty's Theatre is as follows: Academic Festival—Brahms; Symphony in D minor—Cesar Franck; Funeral music from Gotterdammerung—Wagner; Ballet Suite—Lullu; Jupiter—Holst. The Wagner is one of the new pieces that were brought to Montreal by Mr. Clarke, while the rest are all favourites from early programs.

This is an ideal program with which to introduce the year: the Brahms is a gay tale of the German students' holidays; the Franck symphony is one of the most tuneful ever written, and could not be surpassed as an introduction to this form of music; the Ballet Suite is a pleasant number making much use of the wind instruments, and the last item, the Holst "Jupiter" is one of the showpieces of the orchestra, a roaring "bringer of joy."

Whether or not students will be able to continue attending these concerts at special rates is not known yet, but in any event, since this is the most important musical offering by local talent, and chiefly since it is of good merit, they should take the opportunity of attending. One year of these orchestral concerts is of more value in laying the foundations of musical appreciation than three years spent in the study of any instrument.

Rosa Ponselle

THIS PRIMA DONNA Soprano who is to sing at His Majesty's on Sunday evening must be known in name at least to all Montrealers who have paid any attention to the best among musical interpreters. She is of American birth, but of Italian descent. Thus she possesses the southern lust for music and song, together with a democratic sense of art and life.

Various press acclamations are interesting, in that they all point to the same qualities in, as one paper calls her La Belle Rosa. To quote: "In all that pertains to vocal mastery this fortunate young woman seems to have every gift and every attainment. Her tone is utterly beautiful, its power without measure, its control and flexibility quite unsurpassed. She seems at home in every type of music, from Verdi to Wagner to Grieg and Carew. She is mistress of the lieder singer's art, calling to her aid those interpretive refinements that are concerned as much with the delivery of the text as with the song itself."

Ponselle is the leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, in whose theatre she has taken many parts, making them so successful as to warrant the highest of praise. Her dramatic power was acclaimed when she portrayed Santuzza in "Cavalleria Rusticana," her conception of the tragic Flora in "Love of Three Kings" regarded as intensely human, and the fact that she could sus-tain interest in Selika of "L'Africana" taken as indicative of her intelligence.

Another Orchestra.

THE CONSERVATORIUM ORCHESTRA, about which little has been said in the Daily, has progressed very favourably. It has a total of 40 musicians 13 being first violins, and 12, seconds. Mr. Tupper, the conductor of this group, was enthusiastic about its future, and was well satisfied with the interest that has been taken in it. Many of the private music teachers in the city have called up to ask if any of their pupils might become members, since the orchestra offered advantages that they alone could never afford them. A few members have been picked from these volunteers, who by their advanced abilities are helping considerably in the success of the venture.

The practices have so far been occupied with studies of some of the composers, no concert being as yet planned. Thus, at the next gathering, a young pupil of Miss Olga Lieber, one of the local pianists, will play the Bach D minor concerto, to the accompaniment of the orchestra. It will be remembered that this was the number played by Harriet Cohen, during her appearance with the Montreal Orchestra last season. Future practices will hear the Mendelssohn "Italian" Symphony, and the Haydn "Military" Symphony.

A Musicale

THE "TEMPLE CENTRE" of the Temple Emanuel, at 4128 Sherbrooke Street West, is holding a musicale this evening at 8.30 to which all who are interested are invited. Being a young people's organization, their program will be presented by a group of young artists, some of whom are already well known to the local concert platform.

The program will be opened by Daniel Breitman, eleven year old pianist, a pupil of Olga Gullaroff, who will play an "Impromptu" by Chopin. Alexander Brodt, violinist, a student of the Conservatorium who holds the Sir William Peterson Scholarship for the fourth time, who is the youngest member of the Montreal Orchestra, and who is concert master of the Conservatorium Orchestra, will play a "Gavotte" by Bach, "Variations" by Correll-Kreisler, and "Nigun" by Bloch. Miss Mina Weinstein will conclude the evening with the first movement of Beethoven's C major Sonata, and the C minor Etude of Chopin.

Equipinnae

FOR many years this campus has been over-run with branches and seedlings of the representative government racket and each spring finds us at a deplorable climax when about half of the student body vote in a dispassionate manner for two equally worthy candidates. Victory goes to the man with most friends and I don't mean this in any insulting manner. Personal popularity is the criterion and issues are nowhere.

The motion to abolish meetings is an excellent one. Henceforth we can just sit back and be governed without worrying about it. But even more excellent, in my opinion, is the proposal to do away with the necessity for being governed at all.

As an example, take that correspondence file I have at home. The subject matter is the joining of the Mens Students' Society and the Women Students' Society and if that file were bound and placed end to end there would be a lot of correspondence in it, and the point of it is that none of that work is worth an itinerant fiddler's damn, if I may be permitted the phrase.

What would I suggest to take the place of the Society? Why, nothing at all. Just nothing at all. Let all student activity follow the path of least resistance and go out of business. Did we come here to put out the McGill Daily? Certainly not! Then why put out the McGill Daily? Be assured by one who has laboured somewhat in his time that there is nothing sweeter than sitting back and letting these student activities slide to perdition where they belong.

But if you insist on an odd student activity or two why not let Finny Fletcher run it with the assistance, from time to time, of the man who will come forward as boss of the activity in question. Away with all the forms of student government! Let us lead a life unworried by McGill Daily, Players Club, Choral Societies and all the rest of them.

There would be but one regret and that would have to do with the social side of the question. There would have to be a return to the very excellent practice of just sitting around talking about this and that and letting the bustling people who want to run activities work themselves into galloping consumption.

Yes, away with all this mess of student activity.

The Redpath Library

When I visit the Redpath Library, The beautiful amphitheatre of the great, The atmosphere soothes my spirit and creates A larger vision, more fortitude of soul, More gratitude to the world's great thinkers For thoughts more precious than gold, Great Souls, willing to converse with me, And with my poor intellect extend sympathy.

The Redpath Library, what a place, All around my silent servants wait, Willing to unlock hoards of wealth, Immortal thoughts, for sickness or health, Books, medicine of the soul, Look out from the large shelves And when you are calm and alone, Gives a kind of solemn greeting.

For Libraries are the great shrines, Where all the relics of the saints, Full of love and virtue they deserve, Without delusion are being preserved, A great diary of the human race, A company of the wisest and wittiest of men, Legacies great genius, leave behind The great monument of vanished minds.

Whose books a guide for youth or a sage, An entertainment for a ripe old age, A house without some good books Is like a man without a soul, Without reading the mind lives on a dole, Light reading is all the rage, But don't do any candle thinking In an electrically lighted age.

H. B. (Arts year unknown).

McGill Lose Benefit Tilt By 6-1 Count

Open Play Noted As Ditkofsky Stars For Reds

WESTWARD'S Q.R.F.U. Intermediates turned back George McTeer's Redmen in the Benefit Game last night by a score of 6-1. This struggle was marked by loose and open play, in which the heavier Westward squad triumphed.

The bill was opened by the Westward High Intermediates who dropped an exhibition game to Montreal High by a score of 12-4. In this contest, Loftus shone for the Purple and White with his kicks and Clasper was outstanding for High School.

Galbraith Scores Twice
In the second game Westward started the scoring early in the opening frame when the Maroon-clad squad grabbed a blocked McGill kick; they followed this with a long forward and a plunge which put them in scoring position and Galbraith made good with a drop. Successive plunges by Patterson, Westward's middle, again placed the invaders near the posts, Galbraith again dropped the oval over the bar for an additional three points.

The Redmen's one and only tally came in the last frame from Byers' toe when he kicked for a rouge. It was Ditkofsky's sure catching and pretty backfield running that saved the Red machine from a worse fate.

ARTS and Engineering meet this afternoon at four o'clock on the Lower Campus in their scheduled football game. Both teams have played two games, Arts having divided with a win and a loss. Engineering have also played two games but fared rather badly with two defeats. The Plumbers are determined to chalk up a win this afternoon and Arts are equally determined to keep them out of the winning column.

A win for Arts would put them in a tie for first place with Commerce and Law. Engineering would hold joint possession of 2nd post along with Medicine, Macdonald and Arts, if they staged a win. To date Commerce and Law are perching on top of the ladder with four points each. Commerce have played two games, won two, and have accumulated 43 points against fifteen of their opponents. Law played three games, having won two and lost one. They scored sixteen points against four of their opponents.

Arts, Macdonald and Medicine are tied for second place with two points each.

Senior Footballers Prepare For Game With Queen's Squad

Will Use Bishop of Intermediate Team to Re-inforce Rear Guard

FACED with the absolute necessity of winning the game next Saturday against Queen's, or else being eliminated from the race for the intercollegiate title, McGill's senior football squad underwent a light but serious workout last night, at the same time anxiously awaiting the recuperation of the new injuries.

Meanwhile, Coach Shaughnessy, as a temporary relief measure, plans moving up two of the Intermediate Q. R. F. U. gridders to the senior squad. Bishop will be used to reinforce the senior rear-guard, while another member of the second string will move up to fill in the holes in the line created by the injury to Garcelon's rib and the continued absence of Watson both veteran linemen.

Taking No Chances
With Lady Fortune frowning on the senior gridmen, Coach Shaughnessy is loath to send his charges through any heavy scrimmages. Quarterback Krukowski and Hammond look like definite starters for next Saturday's tilt, but it is not very likely that Lee will play. Despite a slight injury sustained in the last game in Kingston, Gilbert should be back in the thick of the battle this week.

The Redmen will most probably make a great deal of use of the forward pass in the forthcoming encounter. Although Craig kicked consistently well in Kingston, yet Carter's punting was in a great measure responsible for the Tricolor's rally in the second half. Kicking is Queen's forte, and the forward pass is McGill's; the game next Saturday at the Molson Stadium should be a battle Royal.

SPORT TALKIE

By The Sports Editor

IN the fall, a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of hockey. With genial Bert Light sending all aspiring puck-chasers through a P.T. drill at the Stadium, and Coach Bobby Bell laying plans for an early start to his winter puck campaign, early news comes in that Frank Shaughnessy, Jr., well-known son of a no-less illustrious father, has registered at McGill, and is taking a partial course in Economics. As this course does not lead to a degree, he will not be eligible for intercollegiate competition, but will be able to play on the Q.A.H.A. squad in the City League, providing of course that he makes the grade.

SHAUGHNESSY, JR., is a Bachelor of Arts of Loyola College, and is doing postgraduate work here. At Loyola, he left behind an enviable sport record, having played defence on the hockey team, for four years, and half-back on the football squad during the same period. Last year, he captained and was one of the mainstays of the college senior twelve; he is also a baseball player of some repute, having participated in the Senior City League. If he proves good enough, Frank Jr. will be a valuable addition to Bell's sextet, now that the hockey mentor is faced with the task of filling the vacancies created by the graduation of McTeer and McGillivray, both veteran defencemen.

JUDGING by the comment that resulted from the recent editorial on the B. W. & F. Club, it seems that the whole point of the criticism was misinterpreted. It was not the writer's intention nor desire to disparage the efforts of the men who toil valiantly thrice a week in McGill's make-shift gymnasium, namely the Field House, but it was rather with the end in view of showing how inadequate are the facilities offered the local gladiators in the annual Assault-at-arms.

BOTH in Varsity's Hart House and in Queen's new gym, special rooms are set aside solely for the use of boxers, wrestlers and fencers, as compared to the Redmen's facilities where scrappers are restricted to three times a week, and that at certain hours only, with the consequent lack of proficiency in the art of self defence. Certainly, McGill's primary aim is not the winning of championships, but merely the physical betterment of those students interested in either boxing, wrestling, or fencing; and it was our contention that aspirant boxers or wrestlers, as the case may be, should not be entered in any competition where they are handicapped by poor training facilities in no way comparable to those of the other universities.

College Co-Ede Admired By Visiting Britishers

had seen on this continent. Both the stadium and the field house were objects of their further admiration.

Attend Prom

From the athletic field they made their way towards the Arts Building. The architecture of Moyse Hall interested both, while on viewing it backstage, they remarked on its compactness. They completed their tour of the University by visiting the Redpath Library. At the conclusion of this tour they went to the Mount Stephen Club for dinner and later attended the Freshman Prom at the McGill Union. What impressed them mostly in their inspection of Montreal was the female element of Montreal in general and McGill in particular.

In entering the debate Wednesday night, both Ivor Jones and Hector McNeill will attempt to uphold their clean slate as a result of their victory earlier in the week against Junior Board of Trade.

Van Wagner Elected To Honorary Post

THE first meeting of the Montreal Basketball League was held yesterday. At the meeting Coach Van Wagner was elected to the post of Honorary President of the League. A new team has been accepted into the League, swelling the number from four to five. The newcomer is Notre Dame de Grace, reputed to carry a smart squad of hoopers.

The four teams of last year are back in the race, Fusiliers, Y.M.H.A., Y.M.C.A., and McGill. The strength of the teams is still in the conjectural stage but with new blood injected into the loop, competition should be real hot.

Red Poloists Engage Smart M.A.A. Teams

BOTH Red polo squads engage with the smart M.A.A.A. aggregations tomorrow at the Columbus tank. In their four starts, neither of the Red teams have chalked up a win, although play has been close. Y.M.H.A. seniors and juniors won to the tune of 6-3 and 6-1, respectively, while Columbus poloists took their measure by the scores of 11-2 and 9-1.

The games should be closer than the previous ones with the Redmen rapidly gaining their stride. As these games are played at home, students will be admitted to the Columbus tank with their tickets. The games will start at 8.00 p.m.

Playing the game for the game's sake

Teach boys how to play the game for the game's sake, to scorn a mean or unfair advantage, and it is safe to say they will carry the lesson of good sportsmanship throughout life.

The recreation playground work of the agencies associated with Federated Charities is in charge of instructors who know how to give boys and girls the right angles on such things.

Thus while considerable effort and expense is directed towards providing facilities for play and games, not the least important part of the work is the moral lesson of "good sportsmanship" in the conduct of life.

With many 'teen age boys and girls out of work, it is important that these activities be carried on without let-up.

Your contributions to Federated Charities will assure not only the continuation of this work but that of the other 32 agencies combining in this one appeal.
